The A.C.E. comedy trio
launches a new CD,
Audible A.C.E.,
Saturday at Jazz@Jack's.

Denver's gracious and goofy A.C.E. comedy trio, so named because the members hail from America, Canada and England, has performed its improvisational sketch comedy outdoors, on Guy Fawkes Day, at a self-proclaimed Aspen comedy festival where they were the only performers, and with and without costumes and props. But until now, they've never done it on disc. That's all about to change with the release of their first CD, Audible A.C.E.: Comedy for Your Ears, a compendium of both classic and brand-new A.C.E. routines. To celebrate, join the trio tonight at 7 p.m. for a CD-release party at Jazz@Jack's, 1553 Platte Street; for tickets, $15 each or $20 per couple (one copy of the CD included), call 303-322-6750 or go to www.acecomedy.com.
